

1. Develop innovative forms of democratic internal decision making to build trust.
2. Build interoperability through partnerships or alliances between CSAs pursuing similar causes, while leveraging their diversity.
3. Bridge gaps between global goals and local action through partnerships between global and local CSAs.
4. Global CSAs should support local CSAs with modular training, tool kits and access to technology.
5. Reorient online campaign networks from discourse transformation to a transformation of practice
6. In addition to CSA tactics such as the 'shaming, disruption and incentive strategies,' consider peaceful civil disobedience.
7. Use global CSAs media reach to publicise exemplary local transformative action.
8. Create partnerships with academic actors to ensure claims made by CSAs reflect latest research.
9. Build partnerships with progressive media, corporate, finance and state actors.
10. Create a private fund for worldwide SDG efforts by CSAs, especially in the global south.
11. Strengthen the positive economic narrative around the need for transformation with a green economics coalition.
12. Unite CSA efforts to convince the public that transformation is certainly technically feasible.
